Vo. It's not something that is "related to one's job". It's something one does as a hobby. I think the fault is more in the wording of the question, and whether the writer is trying to find people who love to collect things they like or those who collect things that are related to their job or interest. I think the latter is the intent of this post. I'm not sure the first question is intended as a legitimate one. It could easily be misconstrued as "What is your favorite music instrument?" gushing questions Saree DanceConjunction motorcyclemadhavi February 12, 2020 Can you show me what you don't understand in this statement?
