Lets say I have a key named "dog" . I want to get the value of dog's corresponding key, if this key has a value and say I have a key called "cat", and I want to get the corresponding value of cat's corresponding key, which is "cat's value" . So if the values stored in Redis are like: dog = "Hello world!" cat = "World Hello" Redis will be: dog = "Hello world!" cat = "World Hello" cat's value = "World Hello" dog's value = null If no one has the solution for this problem, please tell me what is the best approach to solve this kind of a problem? Thanks. A: If you put a unique identifier in the key (like the string "dog") and then execute a ZRANGE, that will return the set of keys containing that identifier. In your example, it should return: dog = "Hello world!" cat = "World Hello" cat's value = "World Hello" The ZRANGE command will return a 2-element set, with the first element containing the identifier that you are searching for, and the second one containing the values for that key. There is no need to get the value from
