Q: New player really struggling I'm the only player on the game but it's not difficult at all. You need to click on the field and when you click you need to click on the other field. I was wondering if the reason I'm not having a lot of fun is because it's easy or if my 5 year old son is having a lot of trouble.

A: Playing online with others is definitely different than offline. You may be having fun, but it's more about the pace of the game. As it turns out, playing online may not be ideal for your 5 year old. The reason for this is that online games are more about the player with less about the computer. That's why the internet isn't a computer game, it's a game about information. I think that the difference in pace may cause your son to not have fun. Also, it's a fair question for him to ask if this game is too easy or difficult. As it turns out, a game can be too easy when it's too slow paced. So, the basic question is, "Are you having fun?" The answer to that question is up to you. As for the problem, you may want to consider a different game. There are many online games, all with different numbers of players. If you want a very small game with just you and one other player, then take a look at this question. If you want a larger game that's more like a 4-player offline game, then take a look at this question. If you want a fast paced game, then this question may be useful. FRANKFURT (Reuters) - The German government plans to tighten Europe's borders in a bid to curb migrant flows, Interior Minister Thomas de Maiziere said on Monday, as leaders meet in Brussels to discuss the issue. German Interior Minister Thomas de Maiziere speaks during a meeting of EU interior ministers, in Brussels, Belgium, March 26, 2016. REUTERS/Francois Lenoir

De Maiziere said at a news conference that as part of the "new paradigm" of tightening borders, Germany plans to tighten the Schengen system, an open-borders arrangement that allows free movement among 26 European countries. "Europe will close its open borders. There will be more border checks," he said. The interior minister was speaking before the start of a two-day meeting of EU interior ministers. German officials said at the weekend that they expected another round of talks at the summit. Chancellor Angela Merkel says she does not want to introduce new measures which could have a negative impact on the European economy and the free movement of citizens. But in order to combat the influx of migrants, she is willing to consider measures beyond the Schengen zone. Germany has admitted more than 1 million migrants in the last two years, the bulk of them refugees fleeing conflict in Syria, Iraq and Afghanistan. At the same time, more than 6,000 people arrived in Germany in the first eight months of this year, a rise of 19 percent compared with the same period last year. The country's immigration debate has dominated German politics for months. Merkel's former general secretary, Peter Altmaier, who heads her Christian Democratic Party (CDU), said at the weekend that a return to border controls was not the end goal. "The aim is not to get back to the borders but... we need a more efficient Europe," Altmaier told public television ARD. A spokeswoman for Merkel's Social Democrats said on Monday the chancellor had not requested tighter border controls. “It’s not up to us to decide whether we would like it if the western border were closed again,” the spokeswoman said.
