it interesting the way you're approaching this as well as the fact that you felt this was necessary to post. I see a lot of people around the forums who have taken their work and shared it without doing that (at least not to my knowledge). I'd be curious to see a few samples, just so that we can all take a look and start to understand what the issue is. I may be coming from a completely different direction, but I'm working with this so that you aren't entirely doing it from scratch. This is an old project that I found in a legacy storage device in China. I like Calendar for Pokki is a simple to use calendar application. It is designed to allow you to schedule events from your mobile phone. You can add and modify appointments, select a reminder, set an alarm or snooze an alarm. You can also use it to find out what events are going to take place in your area. Key features:

- Scheduling
- Alarm
- Reminder
- Snooze
- Language

selection It looks simple and it is, but it is one of the best apps for Pokki I have used. CalendarPokki is really simple to use. It works just like a real calendar with three buttons: View, Add and "Move to Diary". It's very easy and intuitive to use. You can easily set it up without understanding how it works and it is very easy to use it from your mobile phone. It's compatible with iOS and Android, but there is no information regarding them, so you can't easily use it on both mobiles. You can sync all your events with your Google calendar or you can set up all your events manually. There is no other app for Pokki that offers such a feature. Only calendar for browser comes close. Perhaps I haven't tried the app I wrote about, but if you want a free and easy to use app for your mobile phone, try it. It's a powerful Pokki app that you'll love! Pokki is a freeware and very nice application, but it doesn't offer a real calendar. CalendarPokki fixes that. You can now have your own calendar on your Pokki and use it from your mobile phone. The fact that it can do is amazing. With a few clicks you can check what events are going to happen today, tomorrow and so on. You can also send an invite to your friends and see if they have it or not. You can also import events from your Facebook account and create one-time or recurring events from your Google Calendar. Thanks to the integrated Notifications Bar, you can manage your events from your mobile phone and see if a reminder has been sent or not. You can also sync all your events with your Google Calendar or you can set all your events manually. You can also see the events that are coming in your area, and you can see if you have a previous event coming up. CalendarPokki allows you to have
