What's New in the Unlock SWF?

===== Unlock SWF is a small utility to help you convert a protected Flash SWF file into a normal one that can be opened in any editor. It's an essential tool if you have lost your Flash file because now you can open it again and work with it to modify it before you save it. Key Features :

===== - This utility converts protected SWF files into unprotected ones that can be opened with a text editor such as notepad. - You may use a blank password (all zeros), which will render the SWF unprotected, or disable the protection, which will allow you to open the SWF with a Flash or text editor. - When you try to import an unprotected SWF file into a Flash application, you may have an error message. Please use this utility to convert your file into an editable one before importing it into Flash. - You may view the value of any Flash boolean that is displayed in the Flash application. These are instances such as "isSoundEnabled" or "isVisible", among others. - You can also view the value of a Flash string or any integer (for example, frame number of a movie clip). - You can view the value of a SWF version. - You can view the value of the frame rate. - You can view the value of the frame count. - You can view the size of the SWF file. - You can read and write Debug Information. - You may read and write an optional password to unlock the SWF. - You can compress the file size. - You can choose whether or not to activate the protection. - You may add a blank password. - You may enable or disable the font smoothing. - The size of the file is displayed as either bytes or Kbs (Kilobytes). - You can save the FLA file to the desktop for use with the FLA IDE. - You can view the SWF version. Release Notes: ===== 5.3.3 A Windows Style Icon has been added. 5.3.2 - A bug for the font smoothing switch was fixed. 5.3.1 - A bug for the password option was fixed. 5.3.0 - A feature for the option to enable or disable the font smoothing was added.
