New Attack Movements Multiple new attack moves are introduced in FIFA 22 that are incorporated into today's match. The following is a quick summary of the attacking duties. 1. Through the ball - An attack move where the player directs the ball into the penalty box with their body, rather than kicking it with the foot. 2. Low cross - A low cross is generally an outside-in cross, but can also be a cross into the penalty box. 3. Long pass - An attack move which involves the player targeting a passing option with a long pass. 4. Aerial Cross - An attack move which involves the player striking the ball with their head above the defence line. 5. Tandem Tackle - A tackle in which two players combine their efforts to bring down the attacker. 6. Defensive Cross - A defensive or midfield move in which the player crosses the ball into the box. Tactical Defined Player Movements in Different Game Play Situations As in FIFA 21, defenders will receive and take instructions from the Tactical AI (we'll talk about that more in a moment), but this year they will now have the option of using the Defined Player Movements in different game situations in order to make winning more challenging.

The following table breaks down the different game situations and illustrates how the Defined Player Movement options can be selected. Note that a player does not have to select an option in any particular game situation. Next to the referee, the assistant referees will contact the player, who must then make his decision on whether to take the ball or let it go. This allows for more strategic opportunities as the referees often miss decisions during a game. The gameplay also makes the game more balanced for penalties as there is no longer the all-or-nothing-wait-for-a-miscue-unlucky-kick as in previous versions of the game. Card Activation - Every player is able to activate one card a season, which can bring players from the bench to the pitch in a moment's notice. This unlocks new tactics, impact players, and tactics.
