More particularly, the invention is concerned with a method and apparatus for generating an electric current of high voltage and low current. 2. Description of the Prior Art It is well known that gas and solar fired engines have been used for many years as power sources for terrestrial propulsion and other applications. For example, U.S. Pat. No. 4,666,137 (U.S. Pat. No. 5,757,089 to Wetmore et al.) discloses a fossil fuel fired power plant which includes the combination of a solar thermal air engine and a gas turbine engine. The solar thermal air engine includes a solar thermal energy collector which collects solar thermal energy in the infrared range and conveys it to an air firing chamber in which a working fluid, normally air, is heated to form a heated working fluid. The heated working fluid is then applied to the inlet of a gas fired turbine engine to augment the normal power output of the gas turbine engine. U.S. Pat. No. 5,735,159 (U.S. Pat. No. 5,757,089 to Wetmore et al.) discloses a thermal energy collection device for the combined use of solar energy and fossil fuel. A solar energy collection array is used for heating combustion air, the hot combustion air is delivered to a gas turbine for producing electrical energy, and the exhaust gases of the gas turbine are supplied to a gas engine for producing mechanical work. The engine includes a sun valve and a radiator. U.S. Pat. No. 5,738,173 (U.S. Pat. No. 5,757,089 to Wetmore et al.) discloses a means for maintaining the thermal mass of a fluid power generating system. A fuel gas is combusted within a primary combustion chamber to generate heat which is transferred to a fluid circulating system. The heated fluid is passed to a secondary 648931e174

A series of polyhydroxylated cyclopropanes were prepared from ethyl 5,6-dihydroxy-5,6-dihydro-4,5-dimethyl-1,3-dioxol-2-one and dimethylamine. Their reactivity as alkylating agents toward DNA in vitro was studied. To evaluate the biological potential of these new agents, tests were carried out in a yeast model with a single-stranded DNA substrate, and in mammalian cells. Comparable levels of strand-scission were observed in vitro for the cyclopropanes tested. Interestingly, a massive cytotoxicity was observed for the compound which bears two hydroxyl groups, presumably due to the very short and unpredictable DNA-strand breaking efficiencies. The alkylation efficiency was not decreased by incorporating functional groups into the cyclopropane ring. The DNA cleavage and repair synthesis data demonstrated that the compound has a good affinity for single-stranded DNA. The results of the biological tests showed a potent cytotoxic effect in L1210 cells and negligible effects on the survival and growth of normal human lymphocytes, suggesting that the compound is a candidate for anticancer therapy.Q: Accessing value from parent class I've been trying to access a value from the parent class but unable to.
