A: You can use: A = Split[inputString, ",", {1, -2}] Split will split InputString in the number of splits you give (1,2 here) and then you need to specify the number of columns you want (0 means all columns). A: I suspect that your input string is a valid dataframe, so you might be able to use `data = Import["C:\\Users\\User\\Downloads\\compsci-1-2-2-3.txt", "Table"]`; The table contains multiple rows, but I would assume that they represent a single string, so you can do a quick check to make sure that this is the case. If data is not a valid dataframe, you can replace the `Import` with something else that will deserialize your data into a proper dataframe. For example: `data = ImportString["C:\\Users\\User\\Downloads\\compsci-1-2-2-3.txt", "Table"]` Once you have a proper dataframe, you can split the columns into an array using the function found here. Sliding door opening in my old Ford-Fusion. Has a license plate on it that says "Dobrożki" which is a slur in Polish means "Good People", not sure what its purpose was. Yes, they are. The red one is very common. The green one is a Volkswagen. The yellow one is an Opel. The orange one is a Fiat (not sure of the exact brand). A blue one can also be a Citroen DS. Another one is a Japanese mini/compact Mitsubishi (I don't know the brand). Here's one from my country. Maybe you recognize some! There are much more, but I didn't have time to include them all. ;-) I love cars. Even though I've never been in one, I've always wanted to be. You know, being from the 'hood, most people think that I'm a grease monkey, and this doesn't help my cause. But, I just love cars, and I'm fascinated with them. My dad told me that "cars, boats and women" don't mix, but I'm thinking that if a woman is a woman, they don't mix with anything
