Q: Unable to call php function from jquery I am trying to get the data from a php file using jquery. I have tried the following codes but it doesn't seem to work. `index.php $(document).ready(function(){ $('#getdata').click(function(){ var path = document.location.pathname; $.ajax({ url: path+'getcustinfo.php', cache:false, success: function(data){ console.log(data); $('#getdata').html(data); } }); });`
getcustinfo.php A: The problem is that you're trying to output HTML from a php file, so your console.log is probably getting the string instead of the output generated by the PHP code. You need to JSON.parse the response like this: `$.ajax({ url: 'path/to/file.php', success: function(data) { console.log(JSON.parse(data)); } });` It is known to use a mobile terminal with Internet access to conduct Internet searches. For example, a personal digital assistant (PDA), a cellular telephone or other wireless communication device can be used to access the Internet and to execute searches of particular types. For example, some cellular telephones can search for Internet sites based on the telephone
