A good illustration of what to expect from Brass Band music is presented by the German polka, which has the same melody and accompaniment as the oktoberfest polka, but whose real essence is the same as polka enjoyed by GIs in USO shows, not the polka of Germany's Old Country. The polka and its variants have been very popular in the United States for over a century, as they were originally written for concert bands to play at square dances. No clarinet player need apply. The BRASS in the (Austrian) WDR was distinguished by its focus on European tradition (the trio sonata form was especially important). In addition to the many set pieces that were developed in the 1950s (such as the Slavko Avsenik avant-garde ensemble Trio Polka, and Gottfried von Ebner's Eksempel ensemble), the BRASS also had an important role in creating the 21st century repertoire. Its members, among other things, introduced and proved compositions that were based on the twelve-tone technique (e.g., in Stockhausen's opera Konkrete Reihe). A string collection of alpine polka parts and tunes in every key. This is the first general collection to feature everything in all keys. Other collections are either by key or only for one style. Brand new set of alpine polka parts and tunes. When performed in conjunction with a baritone horn or trumpet playing a four-part harmony, the bass trombone sections role is to provide a bass counterpoint for the woodwind sections, which harmonize melodies in third and fourths. A version for baritone horn with a bass trombone and alto trombone can be found here: <http://www.devastatingwinds.com/AlpinePolka%20.txt> For an example, see this video clip: <http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=7GBR4kAoGOw&feature=youtu.be>

In Bavaria, Austria and western Germany, polkas are played in the last two decades in clubs and bars, but also in weddings and other special events. Examples of these polkas, be they "traditional", folk- or modern adaptations are shown in the following videos. Heil! Zwiefacher. Tyrolean Coffee House. Tyrolean Dance. But in the Thuringian region polkas were the main style of the Danube Swabians from the 12th to the 18th century and with the Reformation in the 16th century because they followed the Protestant evangelical teachings and they constantly had to face the Swedish persecutions. The polka is strongly influenced by Romanian dances in the form of different types of basepolska . The "European" polka was established during the 19th century as a form of dance music and is performed in brass bands throughout Europe. The first recorded polka song was written in 1850, and there are many songs that predate the 20th century. Folk recordings of polkas are abundant, as well as recordings of pop versions, and many danse polske can be purchased in CD or LP format as re-issues of the 1920s and 1930s. The ballroom polka has been adapted for use in dances, and its most famous exponent is the young American dancer Isadora Duncan. 9 On the other hand, the polka has been used as a dance of liberation for the oppressed, as evidenced by a number of political marches, songs, and dances. For instance, there are many political marches of Czech political prisoners, including Czech Polka , which has been performed in great numbers during the Czech-Soviet war. At the same time, the political march is a generally catchy form that has often used to raise money in support of various causes. 10 5ec8ef588b
